ABOUT

I'm a front end web developer, with a previous background in counseling and education. I love learning and being challenged. There are few feelings in the world better than the moment of satisfaction that comes after figuring something difficult out and seeing what you envisioned come to life.

In my free time, beyond continuing to dive into the always-expanding world of development, I'm into hiking, learning piano, doing headstands and writing a book about building a healthy relationship to eating.

REFERENCES

I had the chance to mentor Courtney during her Front-end Development Course at Thinkful. Her dedication, enthusiasm and attention to details helped her make very good progress in a short period of time. I would recommend her to any potential employer, as a hard-working and fast-learning IT professional.

- Marius Banea

Courtney is very articulate, self assured and mature beyond her years. She has developed excellent and appropriate boundaries. She possesses a great sense of adventure and would be an asset to any profession.
